Policy on Using Anchorage's Community Email System

- The primary use of the Anchorage email system is for the Anchorage board and committees to communicate with members of the Anchorage community
- Members of Anchorage also may use the system to communicate to the community at large
- A moderator will monitor and approve emails from members following these guidelines
- All emails must be of general interest and benefit to the Anchorage community
- Examples of common types of emails are items for sale and requests for contractor recommendations
- All communications must follow standard rules of etiquette and civility
- No emails containing personal attacks, bullying, inflammatory language, political campaigning, commercial advertising or soliciting or advertising of events outside our community will be forwarded
- Information on nonpartisan issues that impact our Chesapeake Bay region, Annapolis Neck peninsula or Anchorage community may be allowed subject to the moderator's approval
